

BYDWELL AND BOGANTE WIN BIG DEBATE

Proved Private Ownership of Railways Good

CERCLE FRANCAIS

Government Ownership A Step Towards Collectivism Claimed Bydwell

H. B. Bydwell of Arts '26 and J. Bogante of Arts '26 were declared the winners of last night's debate of the Cercle Francais. The subject was: "Private ownership of railways is justified." The negative was sustained by S. Altrovitch of Arts '26 and G. Lafleur, B. A. of Law '27.

H. Burton Bydwell of Arts '26, opened the debate by presenting financial statistics relating to the government operation of railways, particularly in Canada and the United States. He based his further remarks on the dangers of public ownership of railways, as well as the damage already done by the partial government ownership and operation in Canada. He stressed the fact of the ever recurring budget with its immense bill for the operation of the Canadian National Railway System. The failure of the public manipulation of railroad systems in foreign countries was touched upon—and particularly the amazing failure of the short experiments of public operation of railways on the part of the American government during the World War. Bydwell's greatest point was the inefficiency of the public railway systems, upon which he spoke for several minutes in a most interesting manner.

Altrovitch of Arts '26 opened the debate on the part of the negative. He attempted to refute Bydwell's arguments, and introduced several convincing points against private ownership of railways.

He quoted Sir Henry Thornton on the necessity of a large population in Canada; he also quoted the following from William Jennings Bryan: "Railways are a monopoly which, by its very nature, is destined to fall finally into the hands of Government and come under the operation of employees appointed by the government."

"Jack" Bogante, of Arts '26, who has previous spoken before the Cercle Francais, was the second to speak for the affirmative. He refuted several statements of S. Altrovitch, and proceeded to supplement Bydwell's remarks. He advanced to the stage of consideration of government ownership in general. One of his aphorisms was this: "I prefer to allow capitalists to have profits than to be obliged to pay exorbitant taxes. He mentioned the notorious lack of vital force in government enterprise, as well as the poor state of most government servants. Another indictment against government ownership was the obvious opportunity for favoritism.

G. Lafleur, B. A., said that profit had been made by the government in railways in Switzerland and Germany. He attempted to explain the lack of competing power of the C. N. R. by demonstrating that the C. P. R. is so firmly ingrained in Canada, owing to many subsidiary utilities.

H. B. Bydwell of Arts '26 closed the debate by speaking for five minutes in opposition to what both Altrovitch and Lafleur had brought out. He said that the directors of most government railways are chosen by politicians who are not business men and are grossly incapable in railroad management. Bydwell then closed the rebuttal by quoting Dr. Stephen Leacock on the subject of government control.

STUDENT IS FITTEST FOR GOVERNMENT

Panegyric to Student Mind is Address at Moccabaean Cercle

MAURICE SAMUEL

Noted Author and Thinker Analyzes Views on Zionism

"It has been the student mind that has played the great part in the national rebirth of peoples," declared Maurice Samuel in a forceful address at a meeting of the Moccabaean Circle in Strathcona Hall, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Samuel characterized the call of business men to a public career as a vicious one. "Government," he said, "is not a science that can be managed by efficiency—it is something above that. The business man, imbued with a sense of gain and acquisition is not the sort of man to have at the head of a state. It is better to have the dreamer, the artist, for what is wanted is an intuition of values, rather than a calculation of values." "No national resurrection," stated Mr. Samuel, "has ever been carried out by the business mind. His is too narrow a world. Always the student mind it is to the fore." For examples in the leadership of the new national consciousness, the speaker cited the names of Griffiths and DeValera, Masaryk and Benes in Czechoslovakia and Plutski and Paderewski in Poland, all students or artists.

"In Zionism, too," Mr. Samuel declared, "the preponderance of students has been evident. Jews, are in danger not of assimilating the bad qualities of the Gentiles, which they can easily pitch out and discard, but of assimilating their good qualities which may prove to be a mistake. The actual maintenance of Judaism to-day is unnatural, but there is the faith in the background that someday the artificial may be once again changed into the natural. It is the student," the speaker continued in backing up his thesis, "who cultivates this faith and changes it into a reality."

Freudism and the wish-fulfillment factor were then brought in to show that, after all, religion may be the expression of the unconscious desire in the heart of a person. Thus, he went on to show how Palestine had developed from, perhaps, a mere symbol to a grim reality. "And reality," said Mr. Samuel, "cannot be treated sentimentally. One feels it, one knows it is there, but one cannot create it as such. He who does so, falls into the same error as the man who determines to be a bohemian, when such a thing is beyond a person's control."

ness men and are grossly incapable in railroad management. Bydwell then closed the rebuttal by quoting Dr. Stephen Leacock on the subject of government control.

Three judges were chosen who after some discussion outside the room, in which the debate took place, returned, and gave the decision to the affirmative. Roncarelli gave the judges' address. After an animated discussion on the part of the members, in which Prof. Villard took part, the meeting was adjourned.

R.V.C. TO SUPPORT THEATRE NIGHT

The Dansant To Be Held On Dec. 6th

That R. V. C. should support Theatre Night on the condition that the performance should not be given more than three nights, was the decision made at a meeting of the R. V. C. Undergraduate Society yesterday.

Miss Eileen Greene gave a report of the meeting of the different faculty representatives which was held to discuss Theatre Night plans, and explained the general ideas for the proposed Musical Revue, although nothing definite has been decided upon as yet. It is the intention to have the skits of the various faculties welded into one and not to have absolutely separate contributions as in former years. There will also be several individual stunts. The feminine boys and members of the choruses are to be chosen from both the M. S. P. E. and R. V. C. Miss Greene called attention to the prize of twenty-five dollars which has been offered for the best skit.

Some discussion followed Miss Greene's report and different points of view were presented. It was finally decided that R. V. C. would be willing to participate in Theatre Nights if the performance should be limited to three nights. The M. S. P. E. had already made a similar decision.

The attention of the meeting was called to the The Dansant which is to be held at R. V. C. on December 6th, and the members were urged to cooperate in making it a success.

STANSTEAD SENDS LETTER OF THANKS

Rugby Squad Appreciated Reception Here Last Saturday

A communication from Mr. Halpenny, Principal of Stanstead College, to Major Forbes, expresses appreciation of the manner in which the members of the rugby team of that college were entertained last Saturday when they played a game with the Arts Faculty squad. The letter follows:—

November 21st, 1924.

Dear Mr. Forbes:—

Stanstead College is under a debt of gratitude to your Athletic Organization for the great kindness extended to its Rugby Football team last Saturday morning and afternoon.

It meant a great deal to the boys of our College to catch something of the atmosphere of University athletics in our game with the Arts Faculty team. It was a decided inspiration to the boys to attend the match at the Stadium in the afternoon.

The fact that your organization made both of these events possible to our boys binds us in deeper appreciation and loyalty to Old McGill.

Yours, etc.

T. A. HALPENNY
Principal.

SOCIAL WORKERS HEAR MR. CLARKE

On "The Functions of the Big Brother Association"

Mrs. George Clarke, of the "Big Brothers Association," gave a very interesting address at a meeting recently held by the McGill Undergraduate Society of the School for Social Workers. He pointed out the various ways the Big Brothers are able to help our young manhood. The basis of the work, which deals with boys from nine to nineteen years of age, is the elimination of evil factors in the boy's makeup or surroundings, and the substitution of factors for good. This work is supposed to be preventive, but in many cases it is not, and the Big Brothers find that they are dealing with delinquent boys from Juvenile Court. The Association is clearing house for boy-problems. The boy is analysed and is sent to the proper source for treatment. This may be the Mental Hygiene Committee, or any other of the resources of our community.

Mr. Clarke said that boys are bad because they are handicapped physically, mentally, by bad associations, or home trouble. Very often too, the lack of proper vocational training is a factor that makes for the delinquent boy.

PHILPOTTS TO LEAD SQUAD NEXT FALL

"Pud" Argue Elected Honorary President

BANQUET DEC. 13TH.

Appointments of Rugby Manager on Sanction of Athletic Association

At a meeting of the Senior Rugby Squad held last night at the Union, "Noolie" Philpotts was unanimously elected captain of the team for the 1925 season. Briefly "Noolie" expressed his appreciation of the honour conferred on him by his team mates, and assured them that he would do all in his power to help the team in the winning of a much needed championship.

Other important matters of business were brought up. It was decided to hold a banquet for the team on Saturday Dec. 13th. A committee, consisting of Murphy, Hughes and Milne representing the Senior Squad, Bazin the Intermediates, and Gilmore the Juniors, was elected to arrange details of the banquet.

There was some discussion as to whether the Intermediates and Juniors should attend the dinner, but it was stated that they did so last year, and also, as some of them next year will probably make up the Senior Squad, they had every right to attend. "The Gables" was suggested as a suitable place for the banquet but it was decided to leave the matter in the hands of the arrangement committee.

"Bones" Little, who was in the chair, expressed his appreciation of the team's wonderful co-operation in the last game against Varsity. He went on to say that had they started that way at the beginning of the season there would have been no doubt as to who would have been champions. Later "Bones" announced the election of Dr. "Pud" Argue as Honorary President of the Club. He also stated that a manager for 1925 had been appointed, but withheld the name until the appointment had been sanctioned by the Athletic Association.

"NOOLIE" PHILPOTTS

Star linesman of 1924 Rugby Squad, who was yesterday elected Captain of next year's team.

SOCIETE FRANCAISE TO GIVE CHARADES

Third Meeting of Session Will be Held Thursday

Charades will be the order of the day at the third meeting of the Societe Francaise on Thursday, November the twenty-seventh, in the R. V. C. Common Room at 4 o'clock. The Societe at its successful opening meeting in October was favoured with an address by the French consul, M. de Vernueil, and music, games and refreshments rounded off the programme. On the 18th, the Societe debaters received warm-hearted support from the R. V. C. In their clash of wits with the redoubtable Cercle orators. And it is hoped that the same success and enthusiasm will greet this, its third meeting for the session, on Thursday when all those who enjoyed the previous sessions of the Societe are assured of a thoroughly amusing and profitable afternoon.

Four charades will be presented by the R. V. C. and the talent and ingenuity of each year will vie for supremacy and the coveted final delectable prize. As a crowning performance (an innovation in Societe history) the French Department will put on a charade and professors may be viewed in action. But lest utter despair overtake the student efforts the faculty has graciously withdrawn from competition for the prize. On then, o years, in pursuit of the actor's laurel and may the best year win!

ECONOMICS CLUB TO MEET TO-NIGHT

H. Aikman and J. Levy To Read Papers on "The Monetary Question"

"The Monetary Question" will be the subject on which two papers will be read by H. Aikman and J. Levy at the second meeting of the Political Economy Club this evening in the Smoking Room of the Arts Building.

As it will be remembered the first meeting of the Economics club which was held on the eve of the British elections, was a distinct success. The attendance broke all previous records.

Aikman and Levy are both fourth-year Honour students in Economics and can be depended on to deliver interesting papers. An open discussion on the subject will follow. Refreshments will be served.

Gordon Nairn, Will preside at the meeting. All students who are interested in Economics are asked to attend. It is expected that Dr. Loucock, Dr. Hemmion and Professor Day will present and give the members their opinion on and knowledge of the subject.

BASKET-BALLERS HOLD PRACTICE

Coach Moore Has Promising Material for Teams

Both Intermediate and Junior Basketball teams held a well attended and somewhat strenuous workout in Molson's Hall last night. During the first ten or twelve minutes, Coach Moore gave a few noteworthy hints on both defensive and offensive play. Practically the whole of the remaining time was devoted in getting the numerous tactics into practice.

As the teams have not been definitely picked yet, the group of some twenty five players were divided into squads of five men each and practiced alternately the offensive and defensive.

Antenna of Medicine has been appointed manager of the Intermediates and will take charge of the team as soon as been picked when will likely be within the next few days. As the league begins on Dec. 10th it is essential that every man attend each practice and become accustomed to those which whom he is to play. The next workout will take place on Wednesday at 5 p.m.

DR. CHIPMAN ADDRESSED PACKED HALL

Maritime Club Held Successful Meeting

NOTED LECTURER

"Old Lamps and New" Subject of Interesting Address

The members of Maritime Club packed Strathcona Hall to the doors last night, when Dr. Chipman well known to all McGill students, and one of Montreal's ablest speakers addressed the assembly.

The meeting opened with R. Dieneen in the chair and after the minutes had been read (in which a reference was made to the abolition of fees) Dr. Chipman was introduced. "The Maritime Club seems to have awakened and the abolition of fees may have something to do with it," commenced Dr. Chipman.

To use a Western phrase in a Maritime Club is a "hardly aim to get together" and to establish mutual acquaintanceship in a club like this even though criticism is strong against local or provincial societies. Other things than charity begins at home, "through a knowledge of our home we become not narrower but wider citizens." Continuing the speaker pointed out that "We have nothing to be ashamed of, for the Maritime provinces has contributed to Canada many distinguished men; distinguished in all walks of life and so may be justly proud of our birth-right. Simple frugal home-life has been responsible for many things."

"Home life and early education is the 'old lamp' he continued. "Be careful how you exchange the 'old lamp for the new'. In wider spheres of life, in which you will find yourself, you will preserve the old lamp and take care, when exchanging it."

"What is to be done to relieve the depression in the Maritime provinces?" went on the speaker. "Legislation won't help us, but if we carry out our old traditions and present to Canada men of the right quality we will be felt. They must leave their homes and thus the influence of the Maritimes will be spread and the interests of the Maritimes presented by men who leave the Maritimes and who preserve their old lamps."

"We mourn to-night as you know, the death of one of our most promising sons—R. K. Jones. The Maritime provinces from the very beginning have always had a turn for law and politics. Nothing succeeds as well as talk in this world and because of these two law and politics, and two others economics and political economy, and the applied sciences that the Maritimes have been able to hold their own, a little more."

"To make the world safe for democracy is a big job, but to make democracy safe for the world is a bigger one. They both have one inherent weakness. They both demand much of the average man, but in this job the Maritimes will do their share. The 'old lamp' of early home life and education may it shine brightly in this community of McGill, even in the presence of lamps brighter and more ornate," concluded Dr. Chipman, and wished the club "a long incarnation" and as individuals a long and useful life. J. O'Reagan moved a vote of thanks which was duly seconded.

Dr. MacKenzie another Maritimor, in a few words remarked that it was

PLAYERS CLUB REAPPEARS ON CAMPUS

New Organization to Promote Dramatic Arts

FIRST MEETING

Sid. Pierce President of Club For Coming Year

The Players of McGill was re-established yesterday, after a two year period of inactivity.

The following officers were elected: Sid. Pierce, president; Miss E. Green, vice-president; E. Gil, 2nd vice-president, and A. P. R. Coulborn secretary-treasurer.

Considerable discussion followed as to what should constitute the activities of the club. Finally the matter was left to the discretion of the executive who promised to present a programme for the season to a subsequent meeting which would be held in the near future. All students in the University who are interested in dramatics are urged to send in a card to the secretary-treasurer Coulborn, Apt. 31, 1560 St. Catherine St. West, giving their names and addresses, former experience and other details of interest.

Basil MacLean opened the meeting and explained the object of the organization, namely, the furtherance of the drama and dramatic art at McGill. Pierce declared the ultimate object of the Players Club should be to manage the Red and White Revue, as well as fulfil the Little Theatre of their ambitions. The president then called for suggestions from the meeting and there were a number of different plans proposed.

Ex-president Taft was so large that he used to buy two seats for football or baseball games. On one occasion he handed his ticket stubs to the usher, who looked puzzled. "You will have trouble occupying those two seats, sir, they are on opposite sides of the aisle."—Ex.

Let us have nothing but the kindest of thoughts for the absent minded professor who kissed his shoes good night and put his daughter under the bed."

hard that so many attractions were held on the same nights, hinting that the same men, the Maritimors, always have to bear the burden.

Dr. MacKenzie was followed by Dr. MacKay who spoke of the difficulty of speaking about the Maritime provinces without mentioning such names as Cunard MacDonald, Dawson, Tupper, Munroe and Grant all men of great vision.

Dr. Gordon addressed the gathering in a humorous vein, impressing upon the audience what an important part the Eastern provinces played in the control of Canada.

Jardine of the Western Club extended the compliments of that organization.

Following this the president recommended the club of the Western Maritime dance to be held at the Venetian Gardens on Dec. 18th.

Refreshments, music, and an informal dance, terminated a very successful evening.

ENGLISH SYSTEM OF EDUCATION IS LIKE AMERICAN

Characterizing the English system of education as essentially similar to the American system, the Right Honourable Herbert A. L. Fisher, former minister of education under the Lloyd George administration, explained the significance of the British department of education recently.

As minister of education, Mr. Fisher was empowered with the granting of the public funds to the various municipalities, which have direct jurisdiction over the schools in our states have none. If the inspectors, who were under Mr. Fisher's direction, found some individual school to be short of the adequate number of teachers or deficient in any other recognized standard, he could curtail the grant of money to that municipality by any amount he should consider just.

"I would not go so far as to advocate such a system in the United States," declared Mr. Fisher, "although I do believe that it is an admirable one as it is carried out in Great Britain. I understand, however, that President Coolidge is considering a department of education as a possible addition to the United States governmental departments."

"The child labor amendment which is now being considered by the United States, may be worthy of support and it may not," answered the educator. "There is no question as to the desirability of the regulation of child labor, but as to who shall regulate this, the states or the federal government, I would not care to commit myself as I am not fully acquainted with the situation."

RAILWAYS MADE RICH BY STUDENTS GOING TO FOOTBALL GAMES

It has been estimated that more than $30,000 was spent during the present football season by students in Ann Arbor Michigan for railway transportation to out-of-town games. The Illinois game at Urbana caused the greatest outlay of money, more than $25,000 being spent for train tickets.

Three special trains were run from Ann Arbor to Urbana for the Illinois game and more than 12 cars made the trip. The largest movement of railroad cars in the history of Chicago took place on the day of the Michigan-Illinois game when 21 special trains made the run to Urbana carrying 273 cars.

Because of the length of the trip no special trains were chartered by Michigan students for the Minnesota game this year. The Ohio game recently, however, drew a large crowd from Ann Arbor, more than 900 people taking the special trains from Ann Arbor to Columbus.

In practically all cases where special trains were run for the students, more than one and often three and four persons slept in the same berth on the Pullmans. Despite the congestion, the railroad companies reported that very little trouble was encountered.

The railroad companies expect numerous attempts of the students at these times to ride free, and according to an official of the Ann Arbor railroad, "We know that they hide under the seats and berths and every conceivable place that will cover a human being, but we don't try to catch them on occasions like this. It would be an impossible job anyway."

THE VALUE OF SOLITUDE

"It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after one's own.—but the great man is he who in the midst of the crowd keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude."

It is curious in glancing over past history to note how many of the world's truly great people have been born and bred in the seclusion of country communities, or even in a great many cases in what are commonly known as the wilds. Biographies of men like Shakespeare, Burns, Carlyle, Lincoln and a host of others show us the invaluable contributions to literature of men whose early years have been spent for the most part in comparative seclusion. Fiction writers too delight in telling us stories of youthful rusticity when placed in the midst of the pitfalls of city life, always with the inevitable triumph of simple honesty leading to invariable success. Evidently there must be some peculiar value in the rustic life which tends to build up stable characters and keen minds.

Speculations as to the reason for this have been many and varied. Some have laid stress upon the physical structure developed by years of strenuous work; others have emphasized the lack of excitement and consequent steady development; and these contain a great deal of truth. But the most probable reason is the influence of solitude upon character. A ploughman once accidentally destroyed the nest of a field mouse, and we have as a result one of the best poems in literature. But Robert Burns would never have been inspired to write that poem had he not seen in the mouse a part of that nature with which he had long held silent communication. Out of a log cabin there came a political leader whose honesty and high moral standards have won respect and reverence the world over. But a character like that of Abraham Lincoln would probably never have developed without the broadening, stabilizing influence of long hours of solitude. In the midst of a crowd a man is swayed by the feelings and emotions of the crowd. Alone he views life in proper perspective, and is forced to think for himself.

To-day we live in the midst of unrest, of haste, of noise. We must always be busy at something. Our work is feverish. Our recreation exists in a mad whirl of social life that leaves us exhausted. Reflection means boredom because our minds are insufficient in themselves and we have never learned the art of abstract thought. We lose touch with nature in our hopeless utilitarianism, and consequently we fail to appreciate beauty and truth in art, literature and philosophy.

CONDENSED COMMENT

The attendance of about fifty undergraduates at the meeting held last night for the purpose of organizing a Players' Club was encouraging. If this interest is sustained there is reason to believe that the organization will find a permanent place among student activities. What part the Players' Club will undertake in staging the Red and White Revue is yet to be definitely decided. But we are assured that the energies of the former will be so directed that the latter will not suffer.

The Mystery of Football.

If ignorance is bliss, knowledge to a college woman at a football game would be inexpressible. Let those who doubt this, watch and talk to a typical lady enthusiast after the next game. She does not know why there are white lines across the field. She thinks the men with the sticks and strings run up and down the sides to measure how far the ball should go the next play. She cannot figure out why they call numbers when the men wear them on their backs. She asks how they expect the man with the ball to run when the team keeps "telling in his waf." She tells everyone around her how "cute that chubby fellow is—the one who always signals for the break." She wonders why they call it off-side when everyone is still in the field. She cannot understand why the rooting section springs to its feet, but she stands, too. She is the second to scream when something very nice happens—she doesn't know what. In fact, the only thing she does know is that "we get seven if the kicker can put it over the post after somebody has carried it over the last line"—and she is never sure till she look at the score-board.

But is she quainted? The answer must be unanimous. Of all those who

WATER PURITY TEST

Putting a goldfish into a city water supply to determine the purity of the water is ineffective, the fourteenth annual waterworks conference held in the Engineering building yesterday decided. In former years, the survival of a goldfish in a water supply was thought to be an indication of the cleanliness of the water.

About 200 persons attended the conference, including engineers from nearly every large town in Minnesota. The discussion on stream pollution centered around the effect on fish life, the effect on domestic animals, and the public health aspect.

In making his plea for a better understanding of what Palestine actually is, Mr. Samuel analyzed the student mind. "Every sensible person," he said, "in his youth at something, something of an agnostic, something of an atheist. He who does not question does not think. The mind of the adolescent student is in the process of dissolving—before and behind are blank eternally."

With such a mind, the speaker wanted students to consider Zionism. "For it is not merely a political question," he declared, "in closing his address. 'It is an individual and urgent answer to every question and need.'"

Mr. Samuel spoke rapidly and lucidly, driving his points home. His address, which only lasted half an hour was crowded with aphorisms and in that brief space of time proved the audience his right to be classified amongst the leading American Jewish thinkers of to-day.

The address was well-received and Bernard Cohen, the president, spoke for the assembly when he regretted that Mr. Samuel was here for such a short time.

IMPROVEMENTS IN CONDITIONS FOR ROWERS

Arrangements Concluded
With Union House
Committee

PROSPECTS GOOD

McGill Expected to Produce Very Fair Rowing Crew

The Rowing Club has announced that one or two important matters have been arranged that will contribute greatly to the present success of rowing in the University. The Union House Committee have consented to put the showers in the basement in working order for the use of the Club Members, and the club quarters in the Union Attic have been tidied and cleaned out so as to make them much more attractive and comfortable. Arrangements have been made with the porter at the Tuck shop for members to leave any valuables in envelopes with their names on, while they are rowing. It is expected that as soon as the showers are available that those desiring to row will undress in the dressing room off the showers, and this provision has been made with the Tuck Shop porter so as to assure the security of members' money while they are upstairs rowing.

These improvements should make rowing at McGill much more attractive than it has been so far and should add to the existing success of the present season. So far, a number of oarsmen with considerable experience have turned out and a large number of inexperienced men have shown a keen interest in the sport as well. Mr. Mohamud, the coach, welcomed everybody, with or without experience, but he is after men who are willing to consider the thing a little more seriously than merely as a means of getting physical attendance. Good progress has been made by the present candidates but here is time yet for any interested in the sport to catch up on those who have started. If the performance of members at present in any individual event, McGill has a chance to launch a crew that will be a credit to the University next summer. The executive is negotiating with certain clubs in the city with the intention of securing a shell for the summer's work and from present indications the Lakeside Club house will be occupied all next summer by McGill men in training for the crew.

It seems that all the McGill Club needs now is to continue its present success and keep on expanding so as to include an increasing number of men. As soon as the club is able to show that it is training and producing able oarsmen, then it will be able to secure grants of money towards the buying of a proper shell. Rowing is a sport that new men can with practice get on to, and now that proper training facilities are provided and that more room has been obtained the executive will attempt to meet all complaints of the coach to provide extra rowing machines for those turning out.

SOCIAL SCI' GRAD. WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Mary Russel Awarded
Laura Spelman Rockefeller
Bursary

Miss Mary Russell, a former pupil of Westmount High School and a social science graduate of McGill, has been awarded the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial Scholarship. It was announced at the Faculty of Medicine, McGill University, this morning. The scholarship is valued at $1,200, and its purpose is to promote the cause of mental hygiene as applied to child development. The award takes effect from December 1.

Miss Russell, who is at present connected with the Associated University of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, entered McGill following graduation from Westmount High School, and had two years in Arts. She then took the diploma course of two years in the School for Social Workers. While training she did field work with the Social Agencies at the Children's Bureau, the Family Welfare Association, Mental Hygiene Clinic and the Montreal General Hospital. She also worked for two summers at the Boys' Farm and Training School, Shawbridge, and was supervisor for the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire Fresh Air Camp at Quebec for two months.

Miss Russell will utilize the award to prepare herself for mental hygiene work in Montreal. Her future plans are to carry on child duty research in mental hygiene and practical work in the field.

"Work in child development, both mental and physical is about to be studied in Montreal in connection with the Mental Hygiene Movement in the Faculty of Medicine and is but a part of the great movement which is now being developed more and more in McGill University," Dr. C. F. Martin, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, pointed out this morning. "Attention is being concentrated upon the preventive side of the work."

Dr. T. B. Mitchell who has been for some months in the United States observing the best work in the various child clinics and laboratories in preventive medicine will return to Montreal early next year to participate in this work. It is expected that the work will be of the greatest value to the social agencies, and will help to co-ordinate the practical side of the scientific work in the medical school with that of the social agencies. The one object is to work for the betterment of public health in the city, a work which McGill University is helping on to the best of its ability.

THE CAPITOL

There is no doubt that Rudolph Valentino has appeared in good pictures, of which "Monsieur Beaucaire" may be taken as a recent example; but after seeing at the Capitol, "A Sainted Devil," adopted from a novel by Rex Beach, there is no doubt also that friend Valentino has appeared—or is appearing rather—in pictures which are not so good.

The chief trouble with "The Sainted Devil" is that it lacks anything very substantial, except the hero's profile, either in plot or portrayal, for the story end quite conventionally, even as it had begun very conventionally. Of course there is a lot of breakdowns in the intervening portions, with repentance for past sins and the pleasure of finding a lost wife, long since thought dead. The restoration comes about as the result of coincidence, which if stressed to the limit, is not good drama.

But there are some very pleasant features about the picture, for it is in the warmth and beauty of a South American settings are usually interesting. Valentino, in the role of a dashing young heir to a large estate in the Argentine, is seen in a variety of well fitting costumes which he wears at the right moment in the right place. He is also given the opportunity of executing a pleasing tango, and it must be admitted that Rudolph's greatest claim to glory is his dancing. He does it extremely well. At times, however, the portrayal of great emotions is somewhat overdone and one is liable to laugh at those portions at which one is due for a few salt tears.

The comedy, with Bobby Vernon, is really quite good, while the musical setting for the feature and the atmospheric prologue are well worth hearing and seeing.

REFORM PARTY IS GOING TO REFORM

It is rumoured that a reform party is now being formed by several members of the mock parliament who are dissatisfied with both the late government and that which has recently come in to power. It is not known however, just what the reforming politicians intend to reform. No one knows just who is leading the party, and no definite information could be secured anywhere or the campus as no one seemed to have heard anything about the matter.

YALE ROWING COACH ADDRESSES GRADUATES

"Coaches are great imitators and right now there is a scamper to get the Washington stroke," said Ed Leader, Yale crew coach, whose Elf crew won a world's Olympic championship last year after successes in this country, in an address to a Yale alumni gathering here.

"The stroke will soon be standardized and then races will be fought out on a basis of training and race psychology," Leader said. The stroke which brought victory to the Yale crew during the last years of his training cannot long remain a secret, he said, and will soon be in general use.

Leader declared that the "greatest race ever rowed" was the Yale race with the Navy crew in the Olympic trials at Philadelphia.

He also mentioned his future plans are to carry on child duty research in mental hygiene and practical work in the field.

"Work in child development, both mental and physical is about to be studied in Montreal in connection with the Mental Hygiene Movement in the Faculty of Medicine and is but a part of the great movement which is now being developed more and more in McGill University," Dr. C. F. Martin, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, pointed out this morning. "Attention is being concentrated upon the preventive side of the work."

THE IMPERIAL

This week's performance will provide a pleasant three hour recreation and though an usual vaudeville is somewhat long yet it is far from being in any sense of the word "boring."

Matt Moore the outstanding character in the future presentation adopts the role of a confirmed old bachelor who due to the influence of his two unmarried aunts looks upon matrimony as something to be completely avoided. The presence of a pretty girl reclining on a chesterfield one morning exerts the same influence on him as a Klux Klan costume does on a negro.

The vaudeville, as judged from the usual Keith circuit is good. Montagu Lore gives it an added value. His satire and humour enable one to appreciate the difference between what may be termed good and bad vaudeville.

The picture could hardly be said to have a plot but rather is entertaining merely from its humorous side.

Perez and Marguerite stages an excellent juggling act something quite out of the ordinary and exceptionally clever including the throwing of a cup and saucer on to his head by means of a quick movement of his foot.

Bradley and Hennessey dancing act is good and prettily staged but unfortunately the parts where singing is attempted take from the otherwise good effect. The matrimonial humor, as is of the playlet type and is really the best of those which have been referred to.

Montagu Lore exemplifies a somewhat superior type. His humour is natural and never of the forced type so often heard. His satire on the political meetings prior to the recent Presidential elections is especially worthy of note and leaves no doubt as to his abilities on the stage.

The other acts were fair but do not deserve any particular mention.

TRIBUTE TO LATE PERCY D. HAUGHTON

Percy D. Haughton will ever be recalled as one of the great football coaches of all time. The tributes which poured in from all sides following his sudden death last Monday, at the moment almost of his greatest triumph, attest to the place he has carved out for himself in this most popular of all college sports. And yet to me he was more of an organizer, disciplinarian and tactician than a teacher. He was a builder rather than a moulder. His genius lay in directing and in this I have always felt, with full admiration for his success and amazing skill in getting results, that he made his football too much of a business and too little of a sport. He aimed for a machine that worked like a machine, and in a measure discouraged initiative on the field by guiding so closely himself. He was not alone in this. Other coaches are constantly violating the spirit and often times the letter of the law by sending instruction from the sidelines through the use of substitutes and doing much of the thinking for the quarterback. This is not as it should be.

FOOLISH FRESHMEN GIVE FUNNY ANSWERS

It has been truly said that from the Freshmen of a university come the life and pep and college spirit of the institution, but several Tulane professors would name one other good quality—humor if one may judge by the reading and criticizing during the English class hour, of the themes handed in by the Freshmen. Some of the remarkable attempts made towards improving the King's English and the deposition of the professors have come under the observance of the writer. For the delectation of the Seniors and the Saint-hearted (?) amusement of the Sophomore class, several examples are set forth below.

"A part of San Francisco is teething with tragedy."

"Both of the men met at the real-views for the underworld."

"In the days of the Pilgrims commerce was carried on by horses and carts."

"She held the wiss of the handkerchief in her hand."

"The Garonne flows into the Dead Sea."

"One bond of union in the Roman Empire at the height of its glory was a strict marriage law, that is, there were no divorces. Men were content to live with their wives."

"One of the causes of the disintegration of the Roman Empire was taxation without representation."

"Another cause of the disintegration was immorality which caused men and women to go off and live by themselves as hermits and nuns."

"A cause of this disintegration was the nursing of Roman babies by degenerate nurses."

"Another cause of the disintegration was the fact that the policemen went out on the wild parties at night and couldn't arrest offenders the next day."

"The Nile River flows into the English Channel."

Some good unconscious jokes that appeared in several of the New York State Regents examination papers are: "Typhoid fever may be prevented by fascinatins."

"Georgia was founded by people who had been executed."

"A mountain pass is a pass given by railroads to their employees as they can spend their vacations in the mountains."

"Dew is caused by the sweating of the earth."

"The stomach forms a part of Adam's apple."

"The hair keeps things from getting into the brain."

"The alimentary canal is in the northern part of Indiana."

"Sixty gallons make a hedge-hog."

"The cause of indigestion is trying to make a square deal out of a round stomach."

LOEW'S

The bill at Loews' this week is full of action and those who like lively movement interspersed with song will be sure to enjoy the show.

Frank Shields is without doubt the star of the vaudeville programme and his handling of a lasso is skillful in every way. Those who habitually fall to sleep during a one man acrobatic act should see Shields and break the habit. His tying of knots is interesting and his exhibition of sphere walking is excellent.

A Night in Spain is a picturesque display of graceful dancing. The color effects are good and gives to the act a fantastic turn. The dances are varied and the whole presents an interesting and artistic scene.

Helene Smiles and Davis Langlis supply an act replete with humor and burlesque. Their songs are comical and their jokes are new and laughable. Their presentation is lively and the time never lags while they are on the stage.

Besser and Keller set their act in a supposed movie studio and by this means bring out some real humour. Their jokes are good and the acting of Keller is at times funny.

Mills and Smith are two Hicks who are comical and full of life. They indulge in clever and funny dialogue and burlesque, even at times showing what they can do at clog dancing.

Gordon and Delmar sing and play and so present an amusing diversion. Their songs are light and timely and their talk is diverting.

Reginald Denny and Laura Laplan take the role in the feature picture "The Fast Worker." The picture is fairly well produced, the acting is good and the plot has a new twist.

A comedy "Wandering Walstines" and a Fox News film are the additions which complete a programme varied and entertaining.

STUDENT ACCIDENTLY SHOT IN LEG BY CHUM

Sydney, Bruce aged 23, student at Macdonald College, along with another student was returning home from the woods behind the college where they spent Saturday morning testing their skill at marksmanship. The boy, in company with Bruce, stumbled and fell on the road and the gun in hand, accidentally went off, shooting young Bruce in the leg. He was admitted to the Royal Victoria Hospital where condition was reported as not serious.

Dr. R. P. Kelso of Ste. Anne de Bellevue treated the student at the college and communicated with the hospital authorities.

MICHIGAN RUGBY TEAM LOSES 144 POUNDS

Shylock, who was done out of his pound of flesh, lost nothing at all. After the Aggie-Michigan game the ton of football flesh in the M. A. C. squad was 144 pounds lighter than before the game. And not a man was missing.

Each squad man's loss of weight follows:—Robinson, 14 pounds; Haskins, 12 pounds; Hackett, Eckert, Schultz, Neller, Llore, and Spikerman, 10 pounds; Eckerman, Beckley and Hultman, 9 pounds; Richard and Garver, 8 pounds. Kipke, Goods, and Vogel, 7 pounds.

B.W. AND F. MEET ON DECEMBER 4TH

Large Entry List Being Filled In Arts Building

The Tyro meet, which every freshman interested in the B. W. and F. Club has been looking forward for weeks will take place on Thursday and Friday, Dec. 4th and 5th.

The Tyro meet is open to all boxers, wrestlers and fencers who have not taken part in any of the sports in a college before. The meet therefore is not confined to freshmen only although of course it is chiefly for their benefit. It is being put on with the view to provide an incentive for the boys in these sports. It will be an excellent way of bringing out the merits of the various competitors.

The entrants are classified according to weight so that no one will have any disadvantage at the hands of a heavier opponent. Lists have been put up on the notice board in the Arts Building on which those wishing to enter may inscribe their names. Up to the present very few names have been put down but this is no doubt due to the fact that those competitors, who anticipate entering the meet, wish to make sure how much weight they can take off before entering their names in any fixed class.

OLD TIMERS TURN OUT WITH NEW WRESTLERS

No new material was unearthed at the last practice of the wrestling club held yesterday in Strathcona Hall but those who have been turning out regularly are showing a vast improvement.

No more new holds were shown at this practice by Coach Smith but the boys worked hard, strengthening their muscles, and practicing those grips which they have previously been taught.

The new recruits were much helped by working with old-timers, such as Harvey, Adams, Silver and MacAvoy. Everyone worked for fully an hour and a half but no one seemed to feel the effects of this strenuous labour. Five bouts are predicted for the Tyro Meet on Dec. 4th, where a great many of the wrestlers will meet in tournament for the first time.

Coach Smith wishes more men in the heavyweight class, that is, men over 180 pounds. All classes but this one, have a considerable number of men but in this class there are very few.

Practices are held Mondays, and Wednesdays at five, in Strathcona Hall.

PHARMACY DANCE TO BE GAY AND LIVELY

Arrangements are under way for the Pharmacy Social and Dance which, will ensure it being the most successful in the history of the department. The dance will be conducted under the patronage of Prof. A. B. J. Moore head of the department of Pharmacy and is scheduled to take place in the New Medical Building on Wednesday, Dec. 10th.

The famous "Blue Jacket Quartette" will supply the music which should satisfy the most exacting. It is assured by those in charge of the supper arrangements, that the "cuisine" will be a revelation. Several novel forms of entertainment are to be staged during the evening.

What these are, is shrouded in deep dark mystery. Time alone will reveal them. Several musical members have been arranged which will enliven the intervals, between the dances. The few tickets which are still available, may be obtained from Mr. Tobin in the New Medical Building. Students of all faculties are welcomed.

The Gallery God

In defense of my city, that Montreal occupies a dismal position in the theatrical horizon is a fact well known that needs no more discussion than the mere stating of it. Some gentlemen have nobly and chivalrously arisen in the defense of their city, and have justified it on the grounds that poor companies are being sent here by the managers. While admitting that this contains some truth, I cannot convince myself that it is the real cause — two pleas of a far more fundamental nature occur to me.

The first of these is the general ignorance of the public in the events of the theatre. The average intelligent person cannot name ten great living actors — unless these actors have appeared in the movies. The number of modern playwrights at his disposal is about negligible. A classmate of mine attributed "Lilom" to the pen of Eugene O'Neill, and he may be pardoned for this offence because he knew, at least, these two names—something which cannot be said of the others.

Proof of this indictment is at hand. Though "The Swan" had its premiere here, surely the names of Perceval Molnar as author, and Eva Le Gallienne as leading lady, should have assured even the most cautious play-goer of a pleasant evening. When "The Emperor Jones" played here it had behind it the record of a long New York run, the awarding to its author, Eugene O'Neill, of the Pulitzer prize for the best play of the year, and the recognition of Charles Gilpin's performance by the Drama League as one of the finest seen in years. Both of these plays were decided failures here. The James Barrie (always a guarantee for an enjoyable sitting) — Ruth Chatterton (a star of many years' standing) — combination in "Mary Rose" proved another flunk out. The John Drinkwater-Frank McClyn partnership in "Abraham Lincoln" — after it had been hailed in London and New York — bowed its head in our city. The V. Somerset Maugham — John Drew — Mrs. Leslie Carter amalgamation in "The Circle" — three figures to move the most skeptical even if it had not its brilliant success behind it — was frozen badly here. It is not necessary for me, I hope, to catalogue any more such examples.

The second plea is a far more serious one. After all, if a public is ignorant of what is best in the theatre it should not shock anyone. It is also ignorant of many things of greater importance. But where the fault can be laid to two or three persons who are expressly hired on account of their knowledge in this field the affair assumes a different aspect. My fight with the critics of the city press is not that they do not praise the good plays — they certainly do this in an able manner — but that they do not pan the rotten ones. With but one exception, I cannot recall a single instance within the last three years where a play was definitely disqualified (and many came below the belt) — and in this case the critic adopted a puerile point of view towards what was really a remarkable play. The attitude of the critics is one of non-committal surety not an attitude for a trusting public to rely upon. The critic is the traffic cop of the theatre. His duty is to direct his readers to what he honestly thinks is a worth-while production and signal them away from the poor ones. He should have no regard for the box-office — the house does not deserve to make any money on a poor show. As it is, it does not even make any on a good one. The public cannot discriminate between the good and the bad, and consequently leave both out.

Police whistles, roving searchlights and terrified Thetas were the result of a prank played by town boys during the initiation of some of their members into a high school fraternity last night.

About 8:15 o'clock a young man dressed in a nightshirt applied at the Theta house for a room, stating that he had lost his sweetheart and had been thrown out of his own home. After some deliberation by the girls, during which the stranger made himself at home on the porch, the police were called to remove him.

By the time the police arrived the man was no more, seemingly vanished into thin air. A search was instituted by the police and the Thetas but after much rock throwing into the weeds by the girls to route the culprit, boys from the fraternity explained the whole thing. —Er.

Football casualties have decreased about 25 per cent the past five years says "Doc" J. Fred Bohler, director of athletics at the State College of Washington. This, he says, is partly due to improved equipment, partly to the substitution of the turf field for the hard dirt field, and partly, perhaps, because the men are definitely taught to protect themselves from certain forms of injury.

PRINCETON FRESHMEN FAVOUR FOOTBALL

Football remains the most popular of all sports at Princeton University, it was revealed when the department of physical education announced ninety-five freshmen report daily for football practice, against eighty-eight followers of the introductory physical training, familiarly known as "I. P. T." This form of exercise consists mainly of gymnastics and freshmen are required in attendance at these classes before the end of the year. Sports having the largest following after football and I. P. T. are riding, open only to members of the R. O. T. C. unit, tennis, crew soccer and track.

McGILL IN CLOSER TOUCH WITH P.Q.F.A.

This season McGill seems to have been in closer touch with P.Q.F.A. clubs than in former years, consequently the news that they had lifted the Inter-Collegiate Championship was received with particular pleasure. L. Henderson, secretary, Referees' Association, can claim a little share of the credit, acting in the light of a friendly coach, following them round the city in their several games with local clubs. It can be said as a matter of fact, that Henderson has brought McGill closer to the soccer circle, and not, as formerly, something away off in the distance. The work of Captain Seaton and Secretary Schleifer must not, indeed it cannot, be passed over without special recognition. "Twas a fine victory, a fitting for two months hard training, McGill, we must see you before next vacation, if time."

TO TELL RUGBY FANS

Bob Isbister, who has given such good satisfaction as referee in the Intercollegiate union for two seasons, is out with the suggestion that some method be adopted to inform football patrons of the reason for a player being penalized. He points out that the more rabid fans make a practice of "panning" the officials any time that a man is sent to the penalty bench, and it is only on rare occasions that the crowd really knows what happened. The head linesman at the Tiger-Argo game had figured on his stick to show the players and fans what down it was, and it would be a popular innovation to arrange some plan to inform the public regarding the decisions of the officials.—W. C. McMullen, in Hamilton Spectator.

ANOTHER WATERLOO

He removed his coat, his collar, and tie;

He rolled up his shirt sleeves. He was a husky guy.

The strength of a Hercules was his.

And the confidence such great strength gives.

Fearless and bold was the light in his eyes,

A light that feared nothing, that never said die.

He brought forth his instruments so shiny and bright,

Sawpel and scissors plus needles and knife.

His face spoke purpose and high resolve;

No pity the victim from him could evolve.

A swift downward plunge with a glittering knife—

The earthworm as doomed, Grade A for his strife.

Bridges must have put lots of sugar in coffee Saturday 'cause he was sweeter than ever before.

TORONTO STUDENTS BURN FIERY CROSS

White Shroud and Hood used To Entertain Girls in Neighbouring College

On Sunday night the pious citizens of Toronto were somewhat alarmed when suddenly and almost simultaneously two fiery crosses flared up in different parts of the city. One of these crosses, the Torontonians were relieved to learn, was only a school-boy trick. The other has not been explained.

Nine students of Trinity College are said to have been responsible for the flaming cross which was seen in the college grounds last night. The youths are said to have been staging a show for the diversion of girls in a neighbouring college, and they wore the traditional white shroud and hood for the occasion.

About the same time, however, another fiery cross blazed out of the darkness some distance away. Oil soaked planks, nine feet by seven, formed this cross, which had been embedded in oil-soaked rags and set on fire at the end of Merton street bridge. When the fire department had extinguished the flames, some woodwork on the bridge had already started to burn.

There is no vestige of clue so far to the identity of the perpetrators of this second joke, which because of the danger of the fire spreading was more serious than the first. The first will be dealt with by college authorities. The police are investigating the second.

A man sealed himself in a restaurant and after a long study of the menu called the waiter.

"Waiter," said he, "I have but two shillings. What would you suggest?"

"Another restaurant," said the waiter, removing the menu.
